

Three routes, three different success criteria

The tracks are deliberately separated: a better benchmark specialist is not automatically a better production model.

Frozen boundary: C has finished its screening role; A owns the production registry and database; B remains task-routed and cannot replace A without a separate deployment gate.